Only in God is my soul at rest for from Him comes my hope. He only is my rock and my salvation, my stronghold; I shall not be disturbed. With God is my safety and my glory, He is the rock of my strength; my refuge is in God. Trust in Him at all times, O my people! Pour out your hearts before Him; God is our refuge.

Psalm 62:6-9

Excerpt from the book,

The Interior Life Simplified and Reduced to Its Fundamental Principle

Written by an unnamed Capuchin monk in the 19th century

Unity of work and prayer...I have only to recall the fundamental principle: everything in my life must be directed to the glory of God. I must accustom myself to see and consult God in my work as well as in my devotional exercises; to treat of my business with Him in my work as well as in my prayer.

True religion means my union with God; I must live with Him, through Him, in Him. My work must be no more human than my prayer, nor my prayer more divine than my work. I must work with God as well as converse with Him; expect Him to direct my work as well as to inspire my prayer; look at Him while I am working, and pray to Him about my work....

Why does the Church bid me recite the Psalms daily, unless it be to say to me: There is your model; thus unite your life and your prayer...Thus my actions and my prayers would make up one and the same tendency, one and the same supernatural life; this were piety, yes, true piety.
